

Washington College and Kent County have teamed up to offer “Innovation Internships” for students.

We are looking for businesses and organizations committed to enhancing their organizational goals and the development of a Washington College student.

“Innovation Internships” are project based, paid, part-time internships that last one semester. Students will work on a semester long project aimed at applying innovative ideas to improve a specific process or aspect of the business they are working with, as well as their regular classwork at Washington College.

Objectives:

1. Connecting students with the community.
2. An opportunity to develop the future workforce.
3. Fresh ideas to improve a specific process or aspect of the business.
4. Better understanding of the millennial generation and beyond.

The expectations would be set through the career center and faculty at Washington College. Each participating business will designate a site supervisor who will provide feedback to a college faculty member about the intern’s accomplishments.
